

Kimbertly A. Jones

Management Official

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)

A published author, motivational and keynote speaker, Kimbertly's career spans over 30 years across multiple work sectors, including military, corporate, entrepreneurial, non-profit and federal government. He has amassed a broad wealth of experiences consisting of human capital, workforce and career development, human resources, business analytics, policy, training and development, operational and program management. Currently, Kimbertly serves as a Management Official at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in Atlanta, Georgia. In this role, he performs research, qualitative and quantitative data analysis for implementing enterprise-wide workforce planning, evaluation and program development.

Prior to joining CDC, Kimbertly held multiple executive and senior leadership roles as President and Chief Executive Officer of Double Eagle Enterprises; Director of Training and Workforce Development, Culpepper & Associates Security Services; Operations Management, FedEx Express; as well as Communications and Logistical Management, United States Air Force. Kimbertly also serves as a board member for various non-profit organizations. Throughout his career, Kimbertly has been an innovator of developing systems, tools, methodologies and best practices designed to allow organizational leaders to make informed decisions in hiring the right people, at the right place and at the right time.

Kimbertly is a 2015 President Management Council Fellow, sponsored by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM), Federal Executive Board (FEB) and holds a Master's in Business Administration and Bachelor's in Business Management from the University of Phoenix. He is certified as a Strategic Workforce Planner (SWP) through the Human Capital Institute (HCI).